WILBUR'S INDISCRETIONS.
Secretary Wilbur, who was suddenly and mysteriously recalled to Washington, seems to be a well-meaning but indiscreet public officer, with a genius for what is politically undesirable at the moment and even for what the partisan would regard as distinctly malapropos. For example, while the representatives of fifty-four nations assembled at Geneva were earnestly discussing means to cool the passions of war before they burst into flame, it was regarded as unfortunate that the Secretary of our navy should get to his feet on the Pacific coast and preach the superior value of plenty of cold steel in such emergencies. But, notwithstanding his hasty speech and political indiscretion tending to embarrass his superiors, Secretary Wilbur has risen in the estimation of the friends of the late Woodrow Wilson. They are inclined to think, after all, his heart is in the right place and that he has a none too common ability to see straight. For it has come to light that in that unuttered speech, which was suppressed at the eleventh hour, he had expected to say:

"I would rather compliment than condemn Woodrow Wilson. I would rather compliment him for calling upon all the resources of the country and for enlisting in various capacities men like Hoover, Davis, Wallace, regardless of their political affiliations, than complain that he kept Theodore Roosevelt from going to France. I was and am a believer in the League of Nations. I believed that, if we went into the League immediately upon cessation of hostilities, we might save Europe from bankruptcy. I, therefore, sympathized with Woodrow Wilson in his campaign for the League of Nations and I would rather praise him for his attitude than blame him," etc.

In his determination to find out precisely what the Volstead law means and does not mean, Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland has been making wine in his Baltimore home to the sound of trumpets, so to speak. He tested his brew publicly, recording the mounting of alcoholic content on great charts in front of his house. Meanwhile he repeatedly employed the newspapers to beg the prohibition commissioner to tell him whether he was breaking the law or not and as often announced that he was using formula furnished regularly upon application by the Department of Agriculture. And now, at least, he has been indicted. But we may be sure he will not let the matter rest there, and certainly something more is to be desired. His question, so spectacularly submitted, should receive a definite and authoritative answer.

There is said to be debate in England as to whether the present British Colonial Secretary drops his 's' (they spell it "aitches" over there) unconsciously or with deliberate purpose in order to please his proletarian constituency. Whatever the answer in this particular case, no doubt the average Britisher is as unopinioned of his h-dropping as he is of the injustice of describing Albert Edward as the Prince of "Wiles."

THE OFFICE CAT
A lady and her little daughter were walking through a fashionable street when they came to a portion strewn with straw, so as to deaden the noise of vehicles passing a certain house. "What's that for, mamma?" said the child.
The mother replied, "Why, the lady in that house has had a little girl sent her."

The child thought a moment, looked at the quantity of straw, and said: "Awfully well packed, wasn't she, mamma?"

"RED" MASON FINED $100; REFEREE IS SUSPENDED

"Daddy" Vance Gave Himself His Nickname
Vance gave himself his baseball nickname. "Daddy" sounds as if it refers to his blinding fast ball, but it doesn't. It means his "change," his slow ball.
When he was with New Orleans somebody asked him what he had.
"A fast ball and a daddy," was the reply. Finally he wrote it down, and it leaked out that "daddy" was his idea of the way to pronounce "daisy."
So he became "Daddy" then, and is "Daddy" today. Today it's the National league batters who are "daddy."

Good Left Is Essential in Various Kinds of Sport
Many baseball players are handicapped by a weak left hand. They often fail because the lack of a good backhand. Ball players frequently fall down because they are weak going to the right or to the left. Many boxers have failed to advance because their left was almost useless.
To these we recommend the case of William Harrison Dempsey as an example. When Dempsey began boxing he had a weak left hand. He decided he could never advance in his profession unless he carried a good left. So Dempsey tied his right hand to his side and sparred, using only the left. He did this for months and the result was that Dempsey developed one of the greatest lefts in ring history. The left played the biggest part in his ring success. It is not difficult to overcome weaknesses in sport, but it does require a vast amount of time, patience, perseverance. It calls for a "grind" that few care for and that explains why more do not succeed.

Cuddy DeMarco is Handed a Lemon In His Fight With Tommy O'Brien At Waterbury, Conn., Friday Night

CHARLEROI BOYS ON LOSING END AGAINST PITT

Flashing a scintillating attack behind a big and powerful line that would do credit to many veteran college outfits, the Pitt Freshman Saturday at Forbes field, Pittsburgh, scored a 25-0 triumph over the strong California Norman eleven. The Cubs tallied in every period and in the second quarter Coach Carlson sent in an entire new team that was in few respects inferior to the men who started. The substitutes got a touchdown over while they were in the game and with Scanlon on the receiving end worked the prettiest forward pass of the game that led to their tally.

The California team was powerful and last Saturday defeated Kiski, but the Cubs kept them on the defense most of the time and they never had a chance to get their offense started. Kennedy, Wagner, Brown, Asshman and Weaver all Charleroi boys played good football for the visitors, but others was a lost cause almost from the start. Bruce, who was hurt in last Saturday's game, was obliged to stand on the side lines and watch the game.

LITTLE PICKUPS OF THE GAME

Beat Monessen.
Score—Charleroi 30, Rochester 7.
The crowd is getting a little bigger every game.
One woman in the Rochester line of rooters said: "He's not a crab, he's a regular fellow."

Rochester came here in style. Their Taxi-Cabs with the blue and white colors made a hit.

Well, we don't know whether there is any other team on our schedule than Rochester that we would rather see score on us.

There are certain business men who are still of the opinion that the games start at 3:30. Some of them missed the spice of the program Saturday.
There is a little fellow on the Rochester team by the name of Moran who had much to do with the inner workings of Rochester's play. The little fellow seemed to be in every play.

Captain O'Brien was sure there. That sixty yard run after a fumble will go down in history. O'Brien sure did make the home fans feel good by his wonderful work in that play.
There were not many substitutions in the Charleroi lineup. Coach Stephanian seemed satisfied with the starters. In the latter part of the game there were some changes and the boys that went in showed their wonderful training.

One fan asked another who he thought was the star of the game. He said: Did you see that game? Yes. Now what do you want me to say? You want me to pick out one individual player. Well, here he is, Coach Stephanian.

That was enough to take the heart out of any team. After six minutes of play Crabb had to go and score three points. Why, most of the business men were not there yet to see the play. Crabb, kindly wait till they get there next time.

One Pittsburgh paper said yesterday: Rochester broke through Charleroi's faltering line for a touchdown. This sporting writer made an awful mistake. He meant "Fighting" line. The Charleroi team has never faltered so far this season and they play the kind of football they have played there is no sporting writer can accuse them of faltering.

There seems to be a laxity in Charleroi's rooters. There is such a thing as getting too much interested in the game and forgetting to cheer the boys up at the right time. That was noticeable on Saturday. When the team was losing ground the rooters stood open-mouthed and looked on with interest in the game mounted.

It is very evident that they do not have any laws in the State of Connecticut like the McBride law in the state of Pennsylvania. They don't have any C. J. McBride's in that state. If they had Cuddy DeMarco would not have got robbed out of one of his most eventful fights, the one that meant much to the local boy.

The facts of the matter is Cuddy fought his second battle with Tommy O'Brien at Waterbury, Conn., on Friday night and the press dispatches came over the line that O'Brien got the decision over Cuddy. The story as printed in the Mail simply said that Cuddy and O'Brien had fought a terrific battle and that O'Brien got the decision.

Now the story is out. The true story is Cuddy gave O'Brien a sound trouncing. Beat him at every stage of the fight and when the fifth round came up the local boy was out to wipe the old score, and landed a left hook on the jaw of O'Brien which put him own for the count of nine. This was early in the round, Cuddy meant business and when O'Brien came back he was groggy; stumbling around the ring, and he stumbled over Cuddy's foot. He immediately charged Cuddy with unfair fighting, to gain time. Cuddy was sympathetic and went slow for a few rounds and gave O'Brien an opportunity to recuperate.

The press dispatches came out plainly and said that DeMarco lost the fight because he "loafed" in certain rounds. This proved to be the loofing period. Cuddy thought he might be at fault when O'Brien stumbled over his foot and he had his man all but out. He knew he had the fight won but his sympathy for the local boy and he did, what they call "loafed" for a time in order to get the audience to understand that he was only human.

In the eleventh round O'Brien showed signs of life and attempted to come back. Then Cuddy started in to show what he could do. In the eleventh and twelfth rounds DeMarco showed the fans down in Waterbury what he had. He toyed with O'Brien, hit him with everything he had but did not have among his assortment the knockout punch. However the last two rounds were so one sided that the audience was in favor of Cuddy.

Now here comes the sequel to the whole thing. The referee was a fellow by the name of Jim Galvin. He is the fight commissioner of the state of Connecticut. Mr. Galvin after putting his right hand in the air, for order, (don't think he was taking an oath) announced that Tommy O'Brien was the winner.

Right here was where bedlam broke loose. Red Mason, manager for Cuddy, jumped into the ring and demanded by what right the referee had given the fight to O'Brien. The fans were all for Cuddy and were with Mason. It looked like a riot and the police ended the affair.

The outcome was that Jim Galvin, referee was indefinitely suspended by the State commission and Red Mason was fined $100 for questioning the decision.

And so it goes. Cuddy DeMarco is back home after witnessing the football game between Yale and Ohio State Saturday. He does not show a mark from what was called in the press dispatches "a terrific battle" and is getting ready to fight Alex Sims at Canton, Ohio, on October 20th. Two days after his fight with Sims Cuddy will fight Charles O'Donnell at Cleveland, Ohio, on October 22.

DeMarco was never in better shape in his life than he is now and during the winter season much will be heard of him.

to more than their duty. There will be bigger games than the one with Rochester and you cheer leaders must remember that your part is as great as that of the football team. Now, let's get together and talk this thing over so that we will not forget our selves again.

WHOLE CLUB KNEW IT BUT MADE HIM GOAT, JIMMY O'CONNELL SAYS

Jimmy O'Connell, the self-admitted "goat" in the attempted bribery of Heinie Sand of the Phillies, to throw a game to the Giants on the eve of the late world's series, trotted out of New York yesterday morning without so much as a plaintive bleat.

At Jimmy's uptown hotel it was said last night he left no forwarding address and the management had no idea of his whereabouts. It is believed he and Mrs. O'Connell left for San Francisco, their home.

Ever since the exposure of the attempted bribery of Sand by O'Connell and Alva (Cozy) Dolan, Jimmy has been the most abject and forlorn figure in all New York. He hoped against hope that Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis would review his case before the Giants left for Europe and show some leniency.

"The whole club knew in advance about the $500 offer," moaned Jimmy "but they made me the goat. Now I'm out of baseball."

Commissioner Landis at the Waldorf-Astoria last night said he was still looking into the bribe case but could offer O'Connell no hope for leniency.

Meanwhile, Cozy Dolan is lingering in New York, although it's his custom to leave for his home and scene-shifting job in Oshkosh, Wis., at the end of the baseball season.

Dolan is not reluctant to discuss certain angles of his ex-communication from organized baseball and insists he is not guilty of any wrongdoing.

To pointed questions concerning the attempted bribe, however, he makes only the now famous reply, "I don't remember."

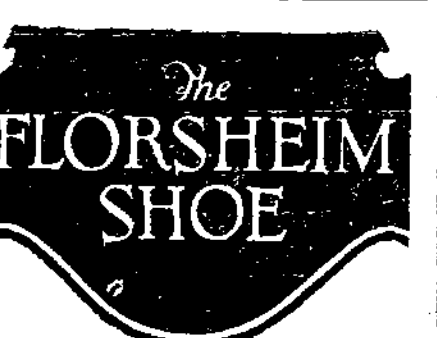

He believes Judge Landis will summon him again before the commissioner leaves for Chicago and will go further into the matter of his baseball fate.

Safety for Principal is the first consideration of the wise investor. He desires maximum income, of course, but he chooses security first.

The First National Bank is guided by these considerations when it purchases investments, and so are those who buy securities through it. Our officers will be glad to advise with you in matters of this kind.

New Notes

Crisp weather is here in earnest. It is time to be considering what your Wrap shall be for the season of crysantheums and the still colder months to follow. Here are top-coats, cloth Coats and fur-trimmed Wraps wealthy in charm. They have attractions beyond their fine lines, colors and trimmings for they present splendid values at these prices. For a lovely, satisfying Coat that will give good service choose from these assortments which are so varied and unusual. And choose immediately while the choice of superior styles is large.

Ruddy Browns

The reddish, bronze tones characterize many of the handsomest coats, while other fashionable ones are shutter green.

The Vest Effect

The vest-coat, a garment suggesting coat and frock, is a whim Fashion shyly introduces.

Tunics, Too

Many new wraps bear suggestions of the tunic, with slim bands of fur encircling them below the kneeline.

New Topcoats With a Youthful Swing

The Topcoat of this season is so much more than a Topcoat, so nearly akin to the smart dress wrap that every woman will be anxious to enlist one in her fall and winter wardrobe. Straightline Coats with long revers and devoid of fastenings are singularly becoming to young girls who will draw them up nonchalantly about them. Straightline Coats merrily plaided suggest outdoor playtimes, and slim Coats in warm shades are often made more entrancing with trimmings of spotted fur. Very unusual values.

LESSON NO. 1 LIGHTING THE LAUNDRY

Nothing waiting there? nor better than the easiest kind of work. When an electric washing machine and an electric ironing machine are used, the weekly wash day is a busy one.

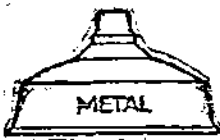

These are little spots of dirt to be washed away—sometimes we have to look twice to be sure that the clothes are quite clean; there are wrinkles and places to be ironed carefully. So we need light that will make it easier for us to see what we are doing; lighting that will let us see at a glance whether the clothes are clean and whether the iron has smoothed out all of the wrinkles.

Many homes have a separate room, sometimes in one corner of the basement, where the washing and ironing are done. In other homes the laundry tubs are found in the kitchen and the same room is used both for cooking and for laundry work.

Where the laundry tubs are put in the kitchen, the lighting equipment in Lesson No. 8 will be satisfactory, unless the room is a large one. In this case it may be necessary to add a bracket fixture.

Use a 60-watt white bulb or a 75-watt daylight or blue bulb. This bulb should be covered with a deep, open bottom, milk-white glass shade. The daylight or blue glass bulb will make it easier to see stains.

When the laundry tubs are in a separate room, we need a light close up at the ceiling and over the tubs. It should have a 150-watt daylight or blue bulb or a 100-watt clear bulb with a metal reflector like this:

Use a dense, milk-white glass shade which is open at the bottom and deep enough to completely cover the bulb, like this:

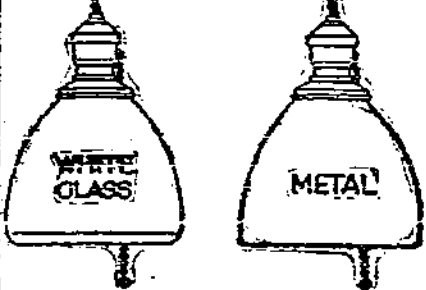

If the room is a large one, we may need two or three of these lights at the ceiling. In most laundry rooms, one over the tubs will give good lighting. When others are used, put them over the ironing board and over the space that is used for hanging the clothes up to dry indoors.

The convenience outlets for the electric appliances should be in the wall not less than 36 inches above the floor, so that the cord with which we connect them will not be on the floor and get wet.

LIGHTING THE BASEMENT

The basement of our homes usually contains the heating equipment and storage space for fuel. At least one light will be needed in front of the furnace or heater. It should have a 60-watt bulb and a metal or glass shade of this shape, long enough to cover the bulb.

A similar light is needed for the fruit closet, and perhaps for the coal bin.

The stairway to the basement must be lighted by a separate light, unless one of the other lights is very close to it. The light that is used for this purpose should be installed so that it may be turned on and off from the top of the stairs in order that we may see our way down at night.

LIGHTING THE WORKBENCH

Perhaps father or brother has a workbench in the basement where he builds radio sets or takes the smaller parts of the auto to put them in good condition.

This workbench needs two lights over it, one at each end. If only one light is used, the shadows that it will make are very annoying. If two lights are used, each one lights up the shadows made by the other one.

You know when you have a table lamp with only one bulb in it lighted, and all of the other lights in the room are turned out, that if you start to make lines with a ruler, the ruler sometimes makes a shadow just where you are trying to put the line. But if you turn on the other lights in the room, this shadow fades out and you can see nicely.

That is why we need two lights at the ceiling over a workbench, and why one of them should be over the center of one end of the bench and one over the other end of the bench and about six inches in front of it.

PROMISES EXPOSE OF RUM RING AS HE AWAITS EXECUTION

An expose of the inner workings of the American "bootlegging trust" is promised by Max Jerome Phaff, now under sentence of death in France. He was convicted of piracy on charges of pillaging the French steamer Mulhouse on the high seas. He declares he was in Canada at the time of the alleged robbery.

Burst Into Home in Automobile For Totally Unexpected Visit

Personal item: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burke dropped in on Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Quirk for an unexpected visit at their home in Portland, Ore. Mrs. Burke lost control of her auto when she turned to look back of her, and then stepped on the gas instead of the brake. The car leaped the curb, climbed the steps of the Quirk home and burst into the house, smashing through the door.

Acoustic Experiment

A very pretty experiment in acoustics can be achieved by the use of a child's tin horn. Tie a sheet of thin paper firmly over the big end, hold the horn so that the paper is level, scatter over it a little fine sand or lycopodium powder, then sing a note into the horn. You will find that the powder has formed itself into an intricate geometrical figure. It was in this way that the first voice pictures were obtained.

Desirable Place of Residence

The Land of Cockaigne was an imaginary land of idleness and plenty, in which the houses were roofed with cake, the rivers ran with wine and roasted fowl offered themselves to be eaten. The name was applied in derision to both London and Paris, following the writing of a satirical poem entitled "The Land of Cockaigne," about 1300.

Original Daylight Saving

Daylight saving, as we know it, had its inception in England in 1907 in a book published by William Willett, entitled "The Waste of Daylight." A daylight-saving law was enacted in Great Britain in 1916, and in the following year in Denmark, Germany, Holland, Italy, France, Portugal and Australia.

"Hoedown" and "Breakdown"

The word "hoedown" originated among negroes in the South and was common even before the Civil war. Nobody has been able to trace its origin. It means a noisy, riotous or disorderly dance, and especially a peculiar dance of the colored people. The word "breakdown" is used in the same sense.
